Feast of Saint Cornelius

Dear Friends,

I last wrote to you during the run-up to school reopening, when I described our return-to-school plans in hopeful, but not yet proven, terms. I am pleased to say that now, in our third week back on campus, students are learning again successfully, in-person. What shines through is that, despite hardships, students and teachers want to be together in school.

Your support -- through prayer, messages of concern, emails, and financial gifts -- has buoyed us and I am grateful. Thank you for your role in getting us to reopening!

This week, the school community will celebrate the Mass of the Holy Spirit in three Opening Masses. Performing arts students are beginning work on old-time "radio dramas," and soon, fall sports will return -- with modifications. Despite restrictions, we will do our best to cultivate in students a mindset of hope and cautious optimism. Mostly, these opening weeks have reaffirmed the joy of being together, and the importance of doing our best. God is good.

Feel free to contact me anytime with questions or comments. Thank you for your support of St. John Paul II High School & St. Francis Xavier Preparatory School.

Best regards,
